Monetary Legend of Ancient Israel

... And a voice was heard in the land. The voice had the power and sweep of a trumpet and it blared over high mountains, across turbulent seas, sped through wilderness and desert plains and when the voice reached the far corners of the earth, the people put an end to whatever they were doing and listened to the voice as fear gripped their eyes. They stared at one another but none spoke; some stood in awe as if in the presence of a superior being, while others cowered and wanted to run and hide but each remained still, unable to move.

Then the voice said to the people: "Do not be afraid. I have come to you with tidings of great joy! A land shall be given unto you and your children and their children shall make it abundant with the fruits of your labors. And always remember, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep; and again I say unto you, my people, behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"

And like the sun disappearing beyond the horizon, the voice slowly faded away and the bewildered people strained and squinted to catch a glimpse of the figure that could not be seen. The people looked from one to the other without speaking and among the multitude were those who scoffed at the words that had filled the hearts of an anxious, persecuted people with lofty dreams.

And as the people returned to their chores, they pondered the message they had heard; then a self-appointed spokesman ran to a hill-top and proclaimed to the simple but devout crowd: "How can you swallow such empty and ridiculous words? No one ever loved a Jew. No one is going to give us anything. Surely you must know this to be true? No one ever has or ever will! If Christians were Christians, there would be no anti-Semitism. Jesus was a Jew. There is nothing that the ordinary Christian so dislikes to remember as this awkward historical fact. But it happens, none the less, to be true."

1964 Proof Sets Go Wild!

Pointed Tail 9 Rare Survey Shows

By F. G. Spadone

IT certainly surprised me to see the 1964 proof sets shoot up to $22.50 with dealers buying at $18.00. A few weeks ago these proof sets were selling for $11.50 each and there weren't many buyers, you couldn't tell me they would jump almost 100%—what a profit for some investors.

According to recent reports the Treasury Department announced no proof sets will be struck during 1965 and possibly 1966, this announcement may have trickered the price jump. The cancellation of minting proof sets was to avail the presses and metal for the minting of single coins for circulation, as the small change shortage is getting more serious.

The investors and speculators are having a field day again and it seems no extra effort is needed other than having cash reserves to work with. The Treasury and Coin publications are indirectly laying the plush carpet for the investors all the way to their banks to deposit the dividends. Coin collecting, no, "It appears more like coin investing—the more poured in by investors, the more the prices shoot up."

One consolation the collector has is the fact that investor is saving the coins for them and no doubt some of these big fellows may take up numismatics seriously and start a coin collection. They may as well, as they have the key material and varieties. What might these be; off hand I see rolls of 1964 dimes and 1964 proof sets. Figuratively they're mintages are not impressive, but then have you ever head of a big profit return on a sure shot.

I have made a study of the 1964 dime variety of the Blunt tail 9 and the Pointed tail 9, I note the Pointed 9 has the potentials of being a real sleeper if it wakes up it will be real active. My research on the mintage of the 1964 dimes shows as follows; 18,000,000 dimes were struck at the Phila. Mint within 6 months. Of these I figure less than 2,000,000 are of the Pointed 9 variety. This means 16,000,000 are the Blunt type 9. Now, assuming the mintage continues at a higher rate this balance and all struck during the remaining 6 months of 1964 will be all Blunt tail 9's thus the rarity of the Pointed tail 9 variety. The 1964 dimes minted from Denver show about 250,000,000 struck to this date. Of these my figures show less than 47,-

LET'S TALK MONEY

But the throng ignored his pleas. They believed that their deliverance from bondage was at hand and no power on earth could have told them otherwise. Their faith was the key to survival. It had been their bread of life in that ancient, primitive, bloody and treacherous period of their rise and growth. It was this eternal life-force, so to speak, that has given these people the strength and the courage to combat and surmount the vicious and crushing onslaughts of a society that was and is still pluralistic and materialistic.

And in time these modern, chosen people united their forces and quietly set sail upon a journey that led them to the country which was their natural inheritance from the traditions of centuries past. The land they settled in they called Israel and thus the link between the old and the new was brought to bear fruit. Now the happy people had a land which was theirs and the wanderers had finally come where they would live and work and marry and die in the rich earth of their illustrious forefathers.

Gradually, the people with their culture, heritage and intelligence built up their land, and it is a compliment to their ingenuity and resources that the State of Israel which was formed in 1948 has grown so rapidly in the related sciences of industry, farming, housing, roads, transportation and foreign commerce; the creation of social and civic organizations, the formation of churches and synagogues, schools, hospitals and institutes of higher learning and culture, such as, the Israel Museum in Jerusalem, the dedication of the buildings on "Museum Hill" which include the Bezalel National Museum, the Biblical and Archaeological Museum, the Shrine of the Book that is to roof the Dead Sea Scrolls, and the Rose Art Garden; and finally, the reopening of the mint in Israel which had been inactive for more than 1800 years.

And it was written that ancient Israel would some day possess a land that would be blessed with nature's abundance and now the new Israel has come of age in a land which has given the people purpose, direction and a place in the sun. But the progress and modernization of Israel does not extend to its coinage. As a gesture of reverence and gratitude, she has retained its link with the past and the coins become at once a saga of Jewish history that goes back many centuries. The emblems of the coins are taken from ancient Hebrew money, issued 2000 years ago, during the periods of political sovereignty of Israel and the two wars of liberation against the Roman Empire (by the rulers of the Hasmonean Dynasty, 129-37 B. C. E., the Jewish-Roman War of 66-70 C. E., and the Bar Kokhba War of 132-135 C. E.). Only one emblem, the anchor, is contributed by the Hasmonean Dynasty, which had in its coinage mainly symbols of non-Jewish character. Four symbols are taken from the Jewish-Roman War of 66-70 C. E.: the branch with three pomegranates in their transition from flower to fruit; the palm tree showing seven branches and two bunches of dates; the vine leaf and the three ears of barley. The coins of the Bar Kokhba War, the most beautiful Jewish coins ever issued, gave four symbols too: the bunch of grapes, the lyre, the amphora and the wreath of leaves which appears on the reverse of all coins.

The new Israeli coinage intends to express a twofold tendency: First, to revive the ancient Jewish coins and symbols and to underline, in this way, the living connection between the State of Israel and the past of the Hebrews; and second: To produce modern coins, born out of the spirit of our time. The vine leaf, the grapes, pomegranates, the ears of barley and the palm tree symbolize the land of Israel and its fertility, while the amphora represents its industries, the lyre its arts and the anchor its navy.

But to get a clearer picture of the interest and historical significance of an Israeli coin, here follows a description of the 500 Pruta which was minted in silver in 1949 (5709). On obverse: In the centre, a branch bearing three stylised pomegranates. Above, the word Israel in Hebrew, and underneath in Arabic; the rim is encircled by elongated dots. The motif was taken from the Jewish shekels minted during the War of the Jews against Rome. Surrounding the pomegranates is the ancient Hebrew inscription,

Letters to the Editors

Gentlemen:

We are glad to be able to give you now some new aspects of our Exhibit:

1) Ours is the only PERMANENT Coin Exhibit at the New York Worlds Fair. The Coin Exposition in the Better Living Center is only for 2 weeks in every 6 weeks. In the intervening weeks, it is a stamp and antique dealers' show.

2) Enclosed please find a photograph of our Exhibit. Credit for its decoration goes to an outstanding New York numismatist, interior-decorator and photographer, Mr. Michael Jordan.

3) We are taking the liberty of enclosing a photostatic copy of the letter of The National Commemorative Society, which is self-explanatory.

The McArthur Memorial Medal in Platinum mentioned therein will go on display at our Exhibit in the Hall of Education on June 22nd.

4) The U.S. Coin Corporation in cooperation with New York World's Fair, Hall of Education Management had three medals struck, all in Sterling Silver (900 fine) as follows:

- a) President John F. Kennedy Memorial Medal
- b) Jacqueline Kennedy Medal
- c) Medal of Education.

The pictures of these medals are enclosed herewith.

Each of these medals were struck in Proof-finish and in small, medium and large sizes. They sell for $3.— $4.— and $5.— respectively.

The J.F.K. Medal as well as the Jacqueline Kennedy Medal depict the Kennedy crest on the reverse side.

The Medal of Education is rapidly becoming a collectors' item. Schools, colleges and other educational institutions are also buying these medals for outstanding students or as prizes for outstanding scholastic performance.

All three medals were struck in a limited quantity of 5000 pieces.

Thanking you for additional editorial assistance, we are,

Very truly yours,
U.S. COIN CORPORATION

GEORGE FONDA

000,000 are of the Pointed 9 variety. The balance of the year could show the Blunt 9 variety in excess of over 500,000,000.

The 1964 proof sets struck to date is about 1,600,000 and over. 3,000,000 is expected to be struck for a record year. The interesting part here is that my figures show less than 100,000 sets will have the Pointed tail 9. Here is your investment potential again, not that I recommend any thing, I am just reporting what I see and think, you take it from there. I see it this way, if someone makes a big score I am mentioned once, if they make a bad investment I am mentioned several times.

I like the new dime variety and feel it is an interesting and collectable item. It will be listed in my 3rd edition, the Major Variety-Oddity Guide of U.S. Coins in 1965.

The reason this Pointed tail 9 variety interests me is the pattern it follows, mainly the similarity it has in comparison to the 1960 small date cents which created such a furor in 1960. Oddly enough I was first to publicize the small dates in May 1960 as editor of the Coin Press magazine.

The study and research done on the small date cents helped me to ascertain the figures on this new dime variety. After considerable study of the monthly mintage statements I inquired of the chief engraver Gilroy Roberts of the Phila. Mint, if there was a change of date on the 1960 cents. Mr. Roberts unimpressed said no, only that the date on the die was enlarged for better wearing qualities. It was at this point it hit me that mean't the balance of 1960 will have all large dates, this interview was by phone in April, 1960, thus the rare variety of the small date was evident in due course.

Actually the 1960 large date cent was the new variety but the small date was the rarity. If you check any cent dated back to 1909 you will see the dates are all of the same size small. Now in comparison to the 1964 dime variety, if you will check your dates to the inception of 1946 you will note they're all Pointed, at least there not Blunted 9's. At this point I assumed without inquiry that the 9 on the dies were re-engraved to have the tail Blunted or squared for the purpose of better circulating wear, with a coin shortage this will help the life span of the coin. I have found a few Pointed tail 9 dimes in the 1964 proof sets that appeared to have almost no tail at all, this I believe to be the very first issues thus the reason for the reengraving of the 9 making it Blunt and heavier.

It is very possible, and I am just guessing now that the real price jump of the 1964 Proof sets could be because of this new variety. Remember the small date proof sets, their bringing about $50.00 a set.

As a recap of this writing consider the following; The 1960 small date cent variety exists in the Phila., the Denver mints and the proof sets. The 1964 Pointed tail 9 exists in the same three issues.

I have received hundreds of letters regarding this variety. Each inquiring which is the rare and which is the regular. The above writing is my answer I hope it is of help and beneficial to you.

FACTS AND FIGURES ABOUT OUR MINT

THE first U. S. Mint was established at the Nation's capital, then the City of Philadelphia, in 1792. It was created by the same act that provided for gold, silver, and copper coinage—the Act of April 2, 1792. President Washington placed the operation under the supervision of the Secretary of State where it remained until 1799 when the Mint became an independent agency reporting directly to the President. Subsequent legislation set up branch mints and assay offices and fixed public depository functions upon such establishments. The Coinage Act of 1873 put all mint and assay office activities under the newly-organized Bureau of the Mint in the Department of the Treasury.

The Bureau of the Mint manufactures and distributes all domestic coins; safeguards the Government's holdings of monetary metals; acquires gold and silver bullion. Other activities concern the refining of gold and silver; coinage for foreign governments; the manufacture of medals for the armed services and others; the manufacture of coinage dies and platinum assay utensils; special assays of bullion and ores submitted for analyses; the manufacture and sale to the public of medals of historic interest.

Field institutions currently operating are the mints at Philadelphia and Denver; the gold depository at Fort Knox, Kentucky, and the silver depository at West Point, N.Y.; the San Francisco Assay Office and the Assay Office at New York. Mint Service activities are administered by the Director of the Mint and staff from Bureau headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The Director of the Mint is appointed by the President, with the consent of the Senate, for a five-year term, and is responsible for all the gold and silver assets of the Government in custody of the Mint.

The Bureau of the Mint reports annually to the Secretary on Mint operations for the fiscal year. The annual report includes estimates of domestic and foreign production of gold and silver, as well as monetary statistics pertaining to the United States and to most of the countries of the world.

HOW TO BEAT THE MINT

IN New York coin shops, 1964 proof sets climbed up to the $11-$12 range. Mint-set prices will probably follow suit. Unfortunately, by the end of the year, there will be approximately 4,000,000 proof sets and only 1,000,000 mint sets—a 4-to-1 imbalance.

However, did you know that while a proof set must be purchased at a premium from either a dealer or fellow collector, a mint set can be assembled by canvassing the banks in search of the uncirculated specimens of the ten mint-set coins (five from Philadelphia, five from Denver).

This method requires prodigious patience, but it is a labor of love that will bring untold self-satisfaction to the enthusiastic collector.

THE SIGNERS OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

FRANCIS LEWIS

The Signers: 2 Francis Lewis

by C. A. OTTO

FRANCIS LEWIS was 63 years of age at the time of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. He had retired from business with an ample fortune and had moved out with his wife and family to White-stone, Long Island. What prompted this successful business man to become involved in one rebellious act after another against his mother-country when he could have just as well left such activity to younger men?

First, let us review his early life and its possible influences upon his future activities. He was born in March 1713 at Llandaff, in Glamorganshire, South Wales, the son of an Episcopal clergyman. His mother was the daughter of the Reverend Doctor Pettingal, also an Episcopalian clergyman. He was an only child, and lost both his parents when only four or five years old. He was brought up by a maiden aunt by the name of Llanwelling who taught him, among other things, Cymraeg, the Welsh language which later helped save his life. His aunt was an enthusiastic lover of her country, its language, and its literature. Young Francis' imagination was fired by the songs of his native bards, and with tales of the wrong to his people. Miss Llanwelling no doubt fostered the love of adventure and the passion for liberty which were Francis Lewis' leading character traits. A visit to a relative in Scotland where he learned the Gaelic dialect and the position of the Highlander served to increase his alienation from England. Francis Lewis received a classical education at Westminster School in London, and then entered the counting-room of a London merchant where he learned the routine of business and a knowledge of the rules of commerce. When he reached his majority, he converted his patrimony into merchandise, embarked for New York, and thus expatriated himself forever.

In America, he established two business houses—one in Philadelphia and one in New York. His partner in business was Edward Annesley, also a Welshman. In 1745, he married Elizabeth Annesley, sister of his partner. They had seven children, only three of whom lived to maturity. Of this brave, unselfish woman, her great-granddaughter wrote, "To Francis Lewis, she was Heaven's best gift. When his adventurous spirit led him to embark on long and perilous voyages, he knew that he left his children to the care of an able as well as a tender woman, who could train their character as well as protect their interests."

In pursuit of his business interests, Francis Lewis travelled twice to Russia, visited the Orkney and Shetland Islands of Scotland, and was twice shipwrecked on the coast of Ireland. Only once did he revisit England.

With the advent of the French and Indian War in 1752, which interfered with his interests as a shipping merchant, he turned to clothing the British troops. He was present at Fort Oswego in 1756 when Montcalm advanced upon the place with a body of French, Canadians, and Indians. After Mercer, the commander of the fort, had been killed, with Francis Lewis standing by his side, the garrison surrendered to avoid an assault. Montcalm allowed his Indian allies to select thirty prisoners, one of whom was Lewis. In celebration of the victory, the Indians would kill one of the prisoners each night as they travelled homeward. While waiting his turn, Lewis happened to overhear his guards talking in a familiar dialect—similar to the Cymraeg. He joined in their conversation, and thereafter was treated as a friend and brother. After taking him to Montreal, he was sent in a cartel to France to be exchanged. At the close of the war, the colonial government presented him with five thousand acres as an acknowledgment of his military services. This adventure was recorded by his great-granddaughter, Julia Delafield, who had heard it time and time again from her grandfather and mother. Francis Lewis demonstrated his loyalty, courage, and resourcefulness in this adventure—traits needed for any supreme test such as signing a Declaration of Independence.

Long active in the American cause against the oppressive legislators of England, Lewis served as a member of the Stamp Act Congress at New York in 1765. The members insisted on the right of trial by jury, and they claimed the privilege of being exempted from all taxes excepting such as should be imposed by their own representatives. They met again later in the year and had the honor of being the first body to pass the resolution that the colonies ought to be united and act in common. The Stamp Act was repealed a year after it was passed, but oppressive acts of the British government did not terminate with this

CRANFORD COIN INVESTMENT PLAN FOR INCOME AND LONG RANGE GROWTH

WHY ARE MAJOR INSURANCE COMPANIES . . . WALL STREET INVESTORS . . . TRADE UNION TREASURIES . . . TURNING TO COINS FOR INVESTMENT SAFETY AND INCOME?

For 30 years, almost without exception, funds professionally invested in coins have yielded far greater returns than corporate stocks and bonds... as much as 10,000% more!

Now, for the first time, numismatists may benefit from the services and advice of professional coin market analysts, under the CRANFORD COIN INVESTMENT PLAN FOR INCOME AND LONG RANGE GROWTH.

Here's how it works:

- 1) Within two weeks of receipt of investor's checks . . . usually within days . . . coins are carefully selected for investment, according to current and anticipated price trends, and each investor's specified objectives: short run income, long range growth, or balanced investment.
- 2) Coins are purchased opportunely in the market, to give each investor immediately, at current retail prices, coins worth at least as much as the money he invests.

- 3) In addition, your coin portfolio will be periodically reviewed by CRANFORD'S investment analysts; and you will be advised of market turns and receive our recommendations on when to sell for profit and/or reinvestment for still greater returns.

Funds for investment are accepted only in denominations of $100.00 or more. Or use our easy lay away plan to buy your coins. Only 20% down the first month and the balance in 4 monthly payments.

For example:

On a $100.00 investment send $25.00 the 1st month, this will include your 5% Service Charge. And start your coin investment NOW! Then only $20.00 a month for the next 4 months. Make check payable to CRANFORD COIN INVESTMENT PLAN.

The coin market today is extremely strong and gives continuing indications of future rapid advancement and increasingly higher coin price levels. For maximum income and growth potential, mail your check and put your money to work for you now!

concession. At this time, Lewis was also a member of the Sons of Liberty, an association composed of gentlemen of tried courage and patriotism, who through their agents and publications influenced the colonists by alerting them to every encroachment of their rights.

Despite the contemptuous disregard of the petitions and remonstrances of the colonial assemblies by the mother-country, the colonists still maintained a respectful attitude toward England. Not only were they proud of the ties which bound them but they doubted their ability to maintain themselves without her protection. Even Lewis, a determined Whig, was not thinking of any forcible separation. In 1771, to establish his older son, Francis Lewis Jr. in business, he accompanied him to England to help him form commercial relations with this country.

However, after the closing of the port of Boston in May 1774, the sympathy of all the colonies was aroused, and a General Congress was summoned to meet at Carpenters' Hall in Philadelphia "to deliberate and determine upon wise and proper measures for the recovery

On reverse: Between two olive branches, the inscription: 500 Pruta-5709. The rim is encircled by elongated dots. The two olive branches appear for the first time on the coins of the Hasmonean Dynasty beginning with those of Yohanan Hyrkanos I (135-104 B. C. E.). Between the two olive branches are the words Yohanan the High Priest and the Community of the Jews. On the coins of other Hasmoneans, according to the case, the name is changed to Yehuda, Yehonathan or Mattathiahu.

It can be readily seen that the Israeli pieces are definitely "show coins" which should be a "must" for collectors and shrewd investors. The latter can easily recall that the stamps of Israel were an ideal portfolio for those who had the foresight to purchase them as they were minted each year.

However, the investment potential in the money of Israel is at this moment in a temporary depressed economy because very few dealers and numismatists are acquainted with them. The coinage of Israel is a sleeper which bears not watching, but investing. At present, with patience and leg-work, the entire lot of Israeli items is available but when the demand exceeds the supply, then the coins of the State of Israel, investment-wise, will be on a par with the United States and Canada. And here, for those readers who are interested in starting an investment program, is a list of the coinage of Israel.

ery of their just rights and liberties." On April 22, 1775, Lewis was elected by the provincial convention as a delegate to the Second Continental Congress, which had power to pass all measures necessary for the preservation of the rights of the colonies and for the restoration of peace with Great Britain. Their only hold upon the people was the confidence felt in their ability and patriotism. On November 9, he signed the secret pact by which every member of Congress pledged himself "under the ties of virtue, honor and love of his country not to divulge directly or indirectly any matter or thing agitated or debated in Congress before the same shall have been determined, without leave of the Congress. . . ."

The financial abilities of Lewis and his practical knowledge of trade and navigation made him a most important member of the National Congress. He worked on committees appointed to examine into claims, make treaties with the Indians, purchase clothing, arms, ammunition, and to devise the best means for furnishing the Government with vessels of war. When serving on committees for secret service, his well-fitted purse was always ready at an emergency. Francis Lewis was a patriot in the truest sense that he gave all, including his possessions to further the cause he believed in.

On July 2, 1776, the Independence Resolution was passed by Congress, on July 4 the Declaration of Independence was approved by Congress, and on August 2, the Declaration of Independence was signed by the members of Congress, including Francis Lewis. It was definitely not a gesture of impulse, but a public confirmation of his beliefs in liberty, equality, and freedom from the tyranny of the long series of injustices imposed on the colonists by England. His entire life seemed to be a preparation for this momentous act—a proper fulfillment of the years spent in pursuit of promoting liberty at any cost. Besides such major motivations, there were at least two other minor points that may have added to the complex of factors that led Francis Lewis to

The above 1963 item is an effective presentation of an Israeli's "proof set" which contains six uncirculated coins in a card holder with a cellophane cover and sells for two dollars and sixty cents. (To complete the set of all six current types, a 1962 25 agorot coin is included.) And now we shall list the commemorative coinage of Israel.

The aforementioned coins and commemoratives are an excellent example of the precision and craftsmanship that has gone into the minting of these unusual pieces. At once they become a link with the glorious heritage and tradition of ancient Israel. Examining the coins you get the feeling that the people of modern Israel, by working the land and enriching it, are in a sense expressing their faith, love and appreciation for the gift that was bestowed upon them. And thus, the past beautifully melds with the present which becomes a living symbol in forming the destiny, the shape and shadow of Israel.

The writing of this article was made possible with the assistance and references furnished by Mr. Weber of the Israel Coins and Medals Company, and special thanks are due to the Schocken Publishing House in Tel-Aviv, Jerusalem, for sending me their scholarly publication, Numismatic Studies and Researches, Volume III, entitled Israel's Money by Leo Kadman.

Our feature next month will be an indictment against one of the world's largest and most profitable coin merchants who in the last fifteen years has controlled the economy of the coin world to such proportions that it has begun to threaten the economic stability of the country.

THE SIGNERS

sign the document at the risk of being "exalted on a high gallows." His Welsh background with its animosity toward England nurtured so dramatically by his maiden aunt is one minor factor. The other may very well have been the marriage of his only daughter, Ann, to a British post-captain which severed relations between father and daughter for his lifetime.

Less than a month after the signing of the Declaration, the enemy took possession of New York. When they heard that the home and wife of a signer was within their reach, they sent out soldiers to seize Mrs. Lewis and destroy the property.

After the books, papers, and furniture were destroyed, they took Mrs. Lewis and threw her into prison, where she was cruelly treated. Later, through the efforts of General Washington, she was exchanged for the wife of a British paymaster-general and the wife of an attorney-general. Unfortunately, Mrs. Lewis never fully recovered from the barbarous treatment and died about two years later.

At a time when the war was going badly for General Washington, a conspiracy was formed to impeach him and replace him with General Gates. Due to the quick thinking of Lewis who summoned his friends to New York, so as to outnumber those in favor of impeachment, the motion was not brought forward. This cabal against Washington was a crisis in the life of the young republic which was quashed by the loyalty and resourcefulness of Francis Lewis.

In 1779, Francis Lewis who had been elected for the fourth time a member of Congress, asked and obtained a leave of absence to be with his beloved wife who was dying from the privations sustained during her imprisonment. Mrs. Lewis was just as much a victim of the Revolution as if she had been slain in battle.

In December, 1779 Francis Lewis accepted the appointment of Commander of the Board of Admiralty. He was also a vestryman of Trinity Church. With these exceptions, he retired altogether from public life, generally residing with one of his sons. He died as the result of a fall in his ninetieth year. After his estate was settled, only a fraction of his larger fortune remained—the greater part of it had been spent in the service of his country.

Francis Lewis was a quiet man, reticent and retiring—very unlike other signers such as Adams and Lee. He was considered to be a "moderate Whig, a very honest man, and very useful in executive business" by a fellow signer, Dr. Benjamin Rush. He was a man of rare integrity whose pattern of life generated the force that moved his hand to affix his signature to the historic document of the Declaration of Independence.

On the following pages, NATIONAL COIN INVESTOR has published as a service to its subscribers, the retail value of all Uncirculated rolls of cents, nickels, dimes, quarters, halves and — proof sets — for the past 15 years. Subscribers wishing to learn the recent retail prices of these rolls and proof sets, will find this information listed in the last column under the heading, “recent price — 1964.” (The prices in this last column will be up-dated monthly to show the recent price at press time.)

How To Check Prices:

1. The first page of our new MARKET PRICE RECORD guide to BU rolls of U.S. coins gives the mint date, quantity minted, and the market values in 1949, 1954, 1959, 1961, 1962, 1963 and 1964. Coin collectors-investors can tell-at-a-glance the price history of any given roll of coins merely by consulting the MARKET PRICE RECORD tables.
2. For example: Let us take a look at the tables showing the roll of 1935-P Lincoln cents. The letter “P” after the date, denotes that this roll of coins was minted at the Philadelphia Mint.
3. The second column in the MARKET PRICE RECORD shows that 245 million 1935-P Lincoln cents were minted during 1935.
4. The third column shows that this particular roll of coins was valued at $2.65 per roll of 50 cents in 1949.
5. The fourth through ninth columns indicate roll prices for the years 1954 through 1963. (In 1963, this roll of 1935-P cents increased to $60.00 per roll.)
6. The last column — up-dated monthly — shows the recent price at press time.

With this information, a beginner can easily trace the recent market price record of all BU (brilliant uncirculated) rolls of coins from 1949 through 1964. And, by making a thorough study of the individual price changes from year to year, plus taking into account the mint runs, as well as current prices, you can easily estimate the future prices of all rolls in advance.

WHEN A NICKEL EQUALS OVER SEVEN CENTS

DID you know there are about 300 million nickels in circulation today that are worth over 7.3 cents? These are the coins that were minted during the war, when there was a shortage of nickels. Between 1943 and 1946, 5-cent pieces were made with 56% copper, 9% manganese, and 35% silver. At today's price of $1.29 an ounce, the silver in these coins is worth 7.3 cents.

About 600 million of these 7-cent nickels have already been retired due to normal wear and tear.

A sudden thought—if, by some miracle, the 300 million inflated nickels could be collected, melted down, and refined, the happy dreamer could realize a profit of over six million dollars in silver!

NET PROFIT

SOUNDS FANTASTIC . . . BUT IT'S TRUE!

198.85% NET PROFIT

Since January 1963 thru June of 1963, (25) recommendations for coin investment have appeared in the 'INVESTOR.' The lowest return on any of them were but (4) which showed a net profit in excess of 75%. The other (21) showed a net profit of 130% up to a staggering 518%. Those subscribers who purchased every recommendation we made during this 6 month period have realized 198.85% NET PROFIT!

Should we wish to go back several years the percentage of profit per investment is well over 1,000%. The 'INVESTORS' phenomenal degree of 100% accuracy and superior results is a matter of PUBLIC RECORD! Thousands of these issues are in the files and libraries of collectors and investors the world over.

Unlike many others, we do not have to use old catalog prices—compared with current prices to show the profit in coins. As past issues of the 'INTERNATIONAL COIN INVESTOR' is our proof of the stability of the coin market and the recommendations that have appeared in the 'INVESTOR.'

NO COSTS ARE SPARED NO CORNERS CUT

To assure our thousands of subscribers and clients of the best possible coin investment guidance and service available, we are members of every coin investment service and publication available, no matter how large or small. We are also subscribers to most of the nations' foremost stock investment services and a number of economic researching firms.

During the year of 1963 OVER $3,000.00 was spent for publications and subscriptions alone, so that the readers of the 'INTERNATIONAL COIN INVESTOR' might be the best informed coin investors in the world.

Dealers who subscribe to INTERNATIONAL COIN INVESTOR tell us they have been able to buy coins, for future stock, long before they become popular and made handsome profits in the process.

Small and large investors have also profited by knowing what the market trends are IN ADVANCE . . . three months, six months, or a year from now . . . and have found many blue chip "sleeping" investments theirs for the taking.

The time to buy any big money making investment is before a PUBLIC TIDAL WAVE of buyers swamps the market with bids to buy

OVER 11 BILLIONS AT FORT KNOX

OUR bullion depository at Fort Knox, Kentucky has been the target of many witticisms—but our Government really doesn't mind as long as no visitors are permitted to view the gold bars valued at $11 billion.

The Fort Knox Bullion Depository, one of the institutions under the supervision of the Director of the Mint, was completed in December of 1936, at a cost of $560,000. It is located approximately 30 miles southwest of Louisville, Kentucky, on a site which formerly was a part of the Fort Knox military reservation. The first gold was moved to the Depository by railroad in January 1937. That series of shipments was completed in June 1937. The Depository vault contains gold valued at more than $11,000,000,000. The balance of the Government's holdings is stored at the Denver Mint, Philadelphia Mint, New York Assay Office and San Francisco Assay Office.

The two-story basement and attic building is constructed of granite, steel and concrete; exterior dimensions measure 105 by 121 feet. Its height is 42 feet above the first floor level. Construction was under supervision of the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department, now the Public Buildings Administration of the General Services Division. Upon completion, the Depository was placed under the jurisdiction of the Director of the Mint.

Within the building is a two-level steel and concrete vault, divided into compartments. The vault door weighs more than twenty tons. No one person is entrusted with the combination. Various members of the Depository staff must dial separately combinations known only to them. The vault casing is constructed of steel plates, steel I-beams and steel cylinders laced with hoop bands and encased in concrete. The vault roof is of similar construction and is independent of the Depository roof.

Between the corridor encircling the vault and the outer wall of the building is space utilized for offices, storerooms and the like.

MUCH ADO ABOUT SILVER

DE WITT ALEXANDRE, Senior Vice President of Engelhard Industries, a leading fabricator of precious metal goods, says: "Government will have to do something about coins by the end of 1965", India and Great Britain have already abandoned silver coins and Australia will do likewise in 1966.

There is a serious shortage in silver, and the possibility of increasing world silver production to any large extent is not good. Much of the silver produced is a by-product of lead and zinc, and while production of these metals has increased, world silver stocks have not risen as fast as the demand. Not only are coins affected, but the use of silver in photographic film, in brazing alloys, electrical parts and many other components, has further increased the demand for silver. So far, no satisfactory substitute has been found. Thus, silver is a vital material in several industries and its use has been increasing. Silver processors and fabricators would like to see the price respond to natural supply-demand fluctuations. But it cannot, under present circumstances. And herein lies the problem.

Since 1934, the U.S. Treasury has been committed to redeeming silver certificates in silver dollars or bullion on the basis of the $1.29 price. It also has been committed to buying the output of silver mines at the same price, less a seigniorage (or coining) fee, which now stands at 30%. This means, in effect, that it can buy at 90.5 cents and sell at $1.29. But in 1956 the average yearly price for silver on the New York market passed 90.5 cents, and has stayed above that mark except for a temporary drop in 1958 (recent quotation: $1.293). Thus, anyone would be foolish to sell silver to the Treasury for less than he could get on the market. Consequently, Treasury stocks have been declining. The Treasury's total silver stock—outside of coins in actual circulation—dropped from 2.1 billion ounces at the end of 1959 to 1.6 billion ounces at the end of last year, and best estimates are that the Treasury will use some 200 million ounces this year.

One possible answer is to cut down the amount of silver in coins. The Treasury has asked Congress for permission to mint more silver dollars; none have been minted since 1935. As a companion to the requested bill Sens. Mike Mansfield and Lee Metcalf, both Democrats for the silver state of Montana, have introduced a bill reducing the percentage of silver in cartwheels to 80. This would indeed slow the drain on Treasury silver. It would also raise silver to $1.45 an ounce, at which price the reduced amount of silver in the new coins would actually be worth $1. This might conceivably make it profitable to melt down old 90%-silver coins.

While the Mansfield-Metcalf bill is given little chance of passing, at least in this election year, it is being argued seriously. But many feel that lowering the silver content of the dollar would be just a delaying tactic. "It would be just a temporary small step," says De Witt Alexandre, "Either we should have a really big cut, or we should stop using silver altogether in coins." If the U.S. did so, it might be the final boost needed to free silver for industry.

A step in this direction has already been taken. Last year the U.S. stopped printing the familiar $1 silver certificates, "in silver payable to the bearer on demand." It began replacing them with Federal Reserve notes.

But any move to abandon silver coinage altogether will meet real resistance from the vending machine lobby. "Sophisticated" coin machines send a slight electric current through every coin inserted, and if there isn't the right amount of silver the coins are rejected. To change the machines over to new coinage, while still accepting old silver coins, would cost $32 million, the lobby claims.

Says Engelhard's Alexandre: "If we continue on our present course, Treasury stocks of silver will be exhausted in about eight years. The annual output of silver supply is about 200 million ounces short of demand."

It's anybody's guess as to what will eventually happen to the silver question, but one thing is sure before it disappears entirely from the world's coin purses—its price is bound to rise higher and higher.
